OMS fades slowly

Day by day, piece by piece the Ontario Motor Speedway is methodically being dismantled.

Each day motorists on Interstate 10 pass by the former auto racing complex located between Haven and Milliken avenues, it seems that more and more of the edifice's skeleton is uncovered. Demolition efforts began this summer and are expected to be completed by the end of the year or early in 1982.

Then two industrial-commercial-residential complexes — the Ontario International Center and the Meredith International Center will begin to rise on the property owned by Chevron Land Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. of California.

Central teachers back to work, hope for talks

By NANCY WALLACE Staff Writer

Dave Woodul, president of the striking Central Teachers' Organization in Rancho Cucamonga, said Central School District teachers would not strike Tuesday in hope that school board trustee Pamela Wright could join with at least two other board members for an emergency negotiation session.

Woodul offered this assurance at a meeting of some 400 parents Monday night at the Lions' Community Center. An informal meeting that was to attract about 50 concerned parents filled the meeting hall to capacity for near-

Although teachers returned to their classrooms today, there was no word of any negotiating session with teachers' and school board representatives

And although there were teachers in the classrooms, the district rehired the 91 substitute teachers hired to fill classrooms left vacant by the strike Monday, according to Dr. Norman Guith, district superintendent. "Whether they work or not will depend on whether the teachers show up," Guith said

Substitutes were hired at a wage of $100 per day, 21/2 times the usual substitute pay, to work during the strike, Guith said.

Monday's strike cost the district more than substitutues wages John Tate, director of personnel, said about half of the 858 absences Monday resulted from children being sent home. Guith noted that the state funds the school about $9.50 per child per day, and that hundreds of truant children will cost the district thousands of dollars in state monies.

Guith added that his principals report striking teachers, not aides and administrators filling in, told the children to go home and that all children who missed school Monday were truant. Rancho Cucamonga parents said their children told them otherwise. Shouting out in the crowd Monday night, various parents said their children told them principals and proctors — supporting staff members — gave them the order to call their parents and go home.

Many parents expressed resentment toward teachers for the "erratic" strike method, nothing working parents cannot know when their children will be walking home alone to find a locked house.

Parents voiced other complaints with the district, most of them aimed at Guith. There were gasps and moans when Thomas Brown, bargaining specialist with the California Teachers Association, told them Guith's salary "is just over what the governor of the state makes.

"That's a crime," one parent shouted.

As other complaints with Guith's performance mounted, meeting organizers asked if any school board members were present to explain why they hired Guith and gave him a four-year contract last year.

The only board member to step forward, somewhat reluctantly, was Wright. Board member Diane Rivord, some parents shouted, left without stepping into the meeting. Board incumbents Wright and Rivord were at the community center for a candidates forum sponsored by the Parent-Teachers Association in a nearby room.

Wright told parents she would answer questions, but would not discuss negotiations. "The negotiations should go on at the bargaining table," she told the crowd. "I don't believe that your children should be used as pawns." She also warned that teachers' claims about Guith should be scrutinized. "Attacking the superintendent is a ploy used throughout the state whenever negotiations go on," Wright said. The warning had little effect on the repeated shouts calling for Guith's resignation.

Other parents urged everyone to keep their children at home until the district sits down at the table with the teachers. Some expressed fear that their children's grades might suffer as a result.

'Hearing session' eliminated

Teachers in the Central School District of Rancho Cucamonga returned to their classrooms Tuesday after a majority of the district instructors walked off their jobs Monday, the first "erratic" strike staged by teachers in their festering contract dispute.

Tonight's regular meeting of district trustees was canceled and a special session called at 5 p.m., convening in district offices at 9457 Foothill Blvd. Instead of a regular agenda and a 'hearing session' where teachers' representatives were expected to speak, board members will deliberate in public session on only three items. None of the items pertain to the one-day job

Eliminating the portion of the meeting where the public and teachers can make comments before the board "is standard operating procedure" during a strike, district Superintendent Norman Guith said today.

"Nothing can be accomplished when parents and teachers are shouting down the board," Guith said.

Board Member Glen Ogden said silencing teachers at the special meeting closes off "any possible confrontation."

Guith said 91 of the district's 110 teachers walked off their jobs Monday. Classes were filled by substitutes by 10 a.m., Guith said, with early morning supervision being provided by parents, teacher aides, principals and administrators from other districts. He declined to identify the districts which While attendance was at near-normal levels Monday at the district's three elementary schools, attendance at Cucamonga Junior High was only at 23 percent, with 200 of 846 students in class.

Central candidates give views amid strike turmoil

By JIM MARXEN

Staff Writer With the storm of a teachers' strike raging around them, can-didates for three seats on the Central School District board Monday night held their first public forum of the election season.

The two challengers in the race — Larry Dutton and Jack McKelvey generally stayed away from attacking the record of incumbents Pamela Wright and Diane Rivord, choosing instead to hammer away at the district's administration.

Dale Taylor, the third incumbent in the race, was not present but was represented by his wife Doreen. All three incumbents used their voting records as reasons for their

Though they initially answered philosophical questions posed by the sponsoring PTA organizations, the candidates began addressing the district's troubles when asked a series of questions from the audience.

"We are top heavy in administrators," Dutton said. "I would like to see a cut in the district (administrative) staff and put the money into classrooms.

Rivord said she voted against the administrative reorganization program which cost the district approximately $130,000. She said she ported cuts at the administrative level but because of the reorganization, was unsuccessful.

"I'm willing to cut back," said Wright, who also voted against the reorganization. "But it's an uphill fight to make those kinds of McKelvey criticized administrative pay raises and claimed the administration was building an empire at the district office.

"I don't like empires," he added.
With a number of teachers left in the room, the questioning turned to contract negotiations. One question specifically addressed the 8 percent pay raise being offered teachers.

"There's probably more than 8 percent available," Dutton said. He added, however, that he was unsure if the money could all go to teacher

Rivord agreed that more money is Wright said she didn't feel it would be fair to taxpayers within the district for a board member unavailable but said the district might have a cash shortage if it has to meet those increases next year.

One question asked the candidates if they were willing to state that teachers are the most important component in a child's education and therefore should be paid accordingly.

While the others agreed with the While the others agreed with the statement, Dutton went further by saying a salary schedule should be set up for teachers before any raises are granted administrators.

"If we had held off negotiations with the superintendent," McKelvey added, "maybe we'd have this (the teacher contract) settled."

Candidates were also asked if they would be willing as board members to go to the bargaining.

trained in negotiations to match up against the trained negotiators of the teachers' organization.

McKelvey disagreed, saying the board should take an active role in negotiations. If such a posture had been taken, he added, negotiations might have already been settled.
Rivord said the board is constantly aware of what goes on at the bargaining table.

Each candidate began the forum with an introductory statement outlining campaign proposals.

Wright, who opposed "rubber stamping" the recommendations from the administration, said teachers should be paid fairly but that children should not be used as pawns in the negotiation process.

Dutton said he was dissatisfied with the handling of district affairs and supported decreasing the number of students per class.

Stressing a return to basic subjects, McKelvey claimed the present board had "betrayed the com-background and the need for his expertise on the school board.

Taylor pointed out that nearly 85 percent of the district's money already goes toward personnel.

Members of the community should ask their state legislators to increase school financing, he added.

Rivord also stressed the need for lobbying state legislators. She said her voting record reflects her desire to keep the needs of the students above everything else. She favored cutting costs at the administrative

Office seekers keeping $500 donations limit

eight candidates from a field of more than 75 for contested school district and special district elections filed the longer, more detailed.

The reports cover contributions and expenditures through Sept. 17. Forms had to be postmarked no later than Sept. 22.

of Wednesday afternoon, the Registrar of Voters office ad not received campaign ents from John Vlasic, nda school board; Leo n, Mountain View school Gerald Wolf, Chaffey Joint High School District board, ohn Lyons, Foothill Fire

Most of the expenditures listed so far on the itemized forms are for statements that will be carried on the sample ballot mailed to voters before the election.

Ron Davis, a member of the Chaffey College board, showed the highest expenditures. His charges for the candidate's statement of qualifications are based on the number of voters to receive the sample ballot and the number candidates for an office making use of the sample ballot.

Since Davis was the only can-didate in the college district to submit a statement, the charges were higher than if other candidates had also submitted statements.

Davis made a $1,819 loan to himself. He started the period with $1,283 cash on hand. His expenditures took up all of the $3,102 total - $1,500 for his sample ballot statement in San Bernardino County, $575 for the sample ballot statment to the district voters in Riverside County and $1,027 to National Imprint Corp. of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., for posters and other campaign items.

The Registrar of Voters office will request an amended campaign statement from Davis for failing to carry forward past campaign amounts on his current statement. From his earlier campaign, Davis had shown cumulative loans to himself totaling $9,568.53. Judy Briggs, a candidate in the Ontario-Montclair School District, raised $1,577 in total contributions, including a $750 loan from Dale Briggs. She showed a period-ending surplus of $1,302.10.

In the Upland School District, Dorethea Lesaout raised $576, including a $270 loan from herself. Her largest expense was $390 for a sample ballot statement. Another candidate, Michael Varela, raised $685, including a $390 loan from himself. He, too, paid for a sample ballot statement.

In the Cucamonga County Water District, Beverly Braden raised $450, $430 of that on a loan from Jon T. Braden. She spent $430 on the sample ballot statement. Robert Neufeld, another contender for the two board seats, also raised $450, all of it on a loan from Urusla Neufeld.

OMSD teachers declare impasse

By RICHARD PERAZA Staff Writer

Ontario-Montclair School District teachers officially notified trustees Thursday they are declaring an impasse and revealed that they will request an audit of district funds by the state Controller's Office and Department of Education.

School Board President William Hennie listened to presentations by Ontario-Montclair Teachers Association President Selden Stone and bargaining chairwoman Bev Cowan and answered, "The only response to those two speakers from this board will be a response of silence." Stone said teachers want the district financial condition clarified because they feel there may be more money available for raises than the budget indicates. He said teachers want an audit of fiscal years 1979-30, 1980-81 and 1981-82.

"We don't want to take money away from vitally needed things for the classroom or vitally needed things for the student," he said. But Stone added that OMTA officials believe there are "irregularities" in the district budget that they want investigated.

He said while at the bargaining table, district representatives admitted there was about $310,000 they could not account for.

Teachers are also dismayed that the beginning balance shriveled from $2.5 million a year ago to about $250,000 this year, he said. The district ran so short of money this summer that it borrowed $800,000 from the county to start fall classes.

Stone said some money may have been lost in the shuffle when district officials switched accounting systems - and they changed accounting systems three times in the last

'We're not saying anybody's dishonest, just perhaps that some money got lost in the process," Stone said. "If there's money available, we want to bargain for it."

"We'd just like to clear it up once and for all. We hope it (an audit) establishes there is money to bargain for; and if there is not, then we'll know once and for all," he said.

Stone said OMTA is sending letters to the state controller's office and Department of Education requesting audits, but the local teachers won't stop there. They will also begin circulating a petition among teachers and residents in the district requesting a state audit.

"This is a chore I had hoped and prayed I would not have to do," Cowan said, telling board members that OMTA has declared impasse and requested the Public Employees Relations Board to appoint a state from "bottom line" offers.

She read an OMTA letter sent to PERB: "Since we have attempted to reach agreement by modifying our previous modifications of our own proposal and the district's response has remained a firm no, we can only declare that an impasse position exists," she said.

Cowan said there have been 16 negotiating sessions since April and charged that district representatives refused to change position during the last three.

Teachers, last week, gave up their 16-percent wage boost request in favor of an 8 percent offer, she said.

It could be several weeks before a state mediator arrives and negotiations can resume, Stone said. He said PERB must appoint a mediator within five working days, "but the problem is getting calendared in (for actual mediation sessions).'

But, confronted with the current situation, teachers voted to seek out mediation instead of staging a Teachers met Thursday, before the board meeting, according to Stone. He said 83 percent of those present voted to continue negotiations under a state mediator, 14 percent wanted to strike and 3 percent wanted to accept the district's 6-percent wage boost offer.

"We'll work through impasse and see what happens," Stone said. "It's a fair system and we feel it can

Teacher takes religious holidays off; spurs clash

By JIMMARXEN Staff Writer

A dispute has arisen in the Cucamonga School District over the use of "personal leave" days for religious purposes.

Janice Lasko, a second-grade teacher at Los Amigos School, was told by district officials she could not receive pay for taking days off on Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur.

District officials maintain they are staying within the bounds of a 1977 court decision which also involved the district) that prohibits them from paying an employee for days taken off for religious pur-

Lasko was told she could, according to district policy, take one day off "with no questions asked," but she decided to submit a request for religious purposes anyway.

There was also discussion, teacher representatives said, of putting in for sick leave to cover the three days of Jewish celebration. "I couldn't lie," Lasko said. "This is a very special holiday for me." "She insisted on stating the reason (for the personal necessity day)," said Superintendent Robert Velasquez, who refused the request. "And that invalidated her request." Velasquez said state law prohibits him from allowing days off for such purposes.

"The law is there. If I granted that leave. I would be going against that," he said.

"This is a bad situation. I'm not against anyone celebrating a holiday. It's not the district, it's the state and the federal government." Velasquez said California

Teachers Association officials are "beating a dead horse" by making an issue out of the refusal, but a spokesman for the organization claimed that other districts are granting paid leave for religious purposes

"They don't know how far out of step with the rest of the world they (district officials) are on this," said one teacher spokesman who asked not to be identified. "There are Jewish teachers all over the place who routinely take personal leave for religious holidays."

Such complications can be avoided by getting an annual flu shot, a Health Department spokesman said.

The flu season usually runs from November through

California to boom as economy dips elsewhere

By DONALD C. BAUDER

Copley News Service

Dear Miss-Mrs.-Mr. Californian: In case you're not aware of it, you're in the right place at the right time.

Still another economic study indicates it: The California economy will boom in the 1980s — despite gnawing gatives such as very high housing prices. This study is a little different from some of the others. This one was done by researchers who were bullish back in 1977 when most others were bearish about California's economic future. The latest study is essentially an update of earlier 1977 and 1979 studies.

tate of earther 1977 and 1979 studies.

The study is authored by Palo Alto's Center for Continuing Study of the California Economy, and in essence it concludes that by the end of the decade, California will have added almost 2.5 million new jobs, will have continued to attract in-migrants to fill a substantial percentage of those jobs and, believe it or not, will have experienced "a substantial housing boom based on the location of new jobs in California," said Stephen Levy, an accommist at the center. mist at the center.

The huge difference between housing prices in California and elsewhere in the nation will narrow during the decade," said Robert K. Arnold, director of the center, in an interview, but he conceded that the gap won't close by much. "If we were to tack up houses willy-nilly as we did in prior decades, the gap could close by even more," Arnold said.

He also said that the success of the California econor really can't be attributed to the positive supply-side effect of Proposition 13 - at least as far his data in-"The hig drive comes from the high technology base. People and companies aren't coming here because of Proposition 13's tax changes, at least as far as we can tell. They're coming here because we're so well-situated - we're in the businesses where the growth is," he said. "We see neither stimulus nor deterrent from Proposition 13 - we really didn't try to measure its effect.

According to the report, the state will add almost 140,-000 jobs by 1990 in computers, electronic components, communications equipment, instruments and the like. And that doesn't include the emerging technologies such as genetic engineering and solar technology, in which California represents the leading edge.

The study also did not attempt to pinpoint the gains from the larger defense budget — even though Arnold believes they probably will be significant. In today's heated controversy about defense spending, he decided that the effect just couldn't be quantified.

The report shows that California has a large and growing share of many important markets. Most importantly, with 10 percent of the U.S. population, California has 19.4 percent of the high technology manufacturing activity in the United States.

And there has been - and will continue to be - growth in areas not generally associated with California, such as apparel, furniture, chemicals, publishing and machinery. Such growth represents California producing such goods itself rather than importing from other areas of the country. The trend will accelerate - at the same time that aerospace jobs will stabilize. "The precipitous aerospace declines of the 1960s and 1970s won't recur."

By 1990, California will have added 2.7 million new households, and almost one-lifth of all state families will have real (inflation-adjusted) incomes of more than $50,-000. And almost half will be making real incomes above $30,000. Real per capita personal income will grow from 1980's $10,754 to between $12,365 and $13,968 in 1990 in the

Be prepared for changes on next trip to Mexico

By PHILIP SOUSA

Copley News Service
MEXICO CITY — Progress has always required a measure of adjustment. And these days that certainly applies to an outsider's perception of this great nation which now ranks as one of the world's most progressive developing countries.

Recently discovered oil reserves as vast — and possibly larger — than those of Saudi Arabia have changes Mexico's image and clout overnight. They have also unleashed an ongoing impact on the economy. This sudden wealth, local and foreign economists agree, gets a major share of the blame for the "inflationary spiral" currently bedeviling both residents and their guests from abroad.

There are still ways, however, to trim costs while vacationing in Mexico.

Vignettes collected during a twoweek visit may shed some light on today's Mexican scene.

Acapulco. In the midst of a $300 million face-lifting. Costera Aleman, the seaside boulevard named after Miguel Aleman, the nation's legendary former president and present head of the National Tourist Council, appears the victim of heavy bombing. But it's all part of the government's request to refurbish Mexico's premier resort. New hotels are abuilding, old ones being spruced up. The scenery remains spectacular. Power lines are being buried underground. The bay shines cleaner than it has in decades.

It's summer now, the so-called off-season. But at Denny's a grilled ham and cheese sandwich with a cup of coffee goes for $5. At the lobby bar in the handsome Condesa del Mar Hotel it's $3.50 for a small draft beer. At the nearby thatched-roofed Beto's restaurant, lunch for two—no appetizer, one course per person, two draft beers and a soft drink—adds up to $30, but the place has atmosphere and it's on the beach.

Across the street from the caramel sands, though, it's $3.50 for a hamburger and $4 for juice, eggs and coffee at the El Nopal coffee

The excellent but loud sounds of a discotheque next door make sleep difficult for a guest at the pleasant Fiesta Tortuga Hotel. But room rates at around $40 make the cacophonic interlude somewhat bearable. Palenque. Hard by Mexico's border with Guatemala in the state of Chiapas. Oldest of the classic Mayan ruins in the region. Because of their jungle setting, complexity and good repair, Palenque's treasures form one of the country's most dramatic sights. Almost hidden in the thick foilage about eight miles away, the La Canada restaurant treats a group of European and American visitors to some of the area's delectable cuisine and renditions from a fiveman marimba ensemble. Recipes and songs from the past, explains the very attentive waiter bartender. But some of the prices in the tiny town of Palenque belong decidedly to the present: 50 cents for a cup of coffee, $1 for a pack of Marlboros made in Mexico.

Villahermosa. Capital of the state of Tabasco, a former market town in the throes of coping with its new role as the hub for the bustling and booming oil industry. Motel prices appear to remain attractive: singles about $40, doubles $45. But other services and goods are costly. At the Villahermosa Viva Hotel: drycleaning a pair of trousers runs over $2, a cocktail dress $4.50, American breakfast $6 and domestic beer at the har sells for $1.50 the bar sells for $1.50.

Cuachalate Beach on Ixtapa Island. A tiny speck of sand, rocks, trees and pelicans within sight of Ixtapa, one of the newest of the country's more than 30 officially designated major tourism centers.

The site was picked by a government computer, based on data that experts took years to gather and feed into it. Local commercial fishermen, most of whom belong to a cooperative that also owns the Cuachalate Restaurant on the island, revel in the serenity of their sparsely inhabited region.

Several of them chat with a visitor over $2.50 platters of oysters washed down with $1 bottles of beer. A sea crowded with fish and the gentle pace of their lives in the small twin towns of Ixtapa and Zihuatanejo. they agree, cannot be topped, But winds of change are blowing, one of them notes, perhaps a little, no? Si. Six hotels with a total of 1,458 rooms have opened on the mainland on Ixtapa Beach since 1975, three others are scheduled to open this year, two more in 1982, a 72-unit condo is nearing completion while another 220 units will be ready late next year. Further, this last May, the 30-year-old Club Med welcomed the first guests to its new 375-room facility on Quieta Beach, just north of Ixtapa.

Mexico City. The 30-minute jet hop from Zihuatanejo seems too short. The senses labor in high gear attempting to adjust from the sights, sounds and smells of the uncrowded and still sleepy town on the Pacific to those of the capital.

The place sprawls as no other capital in history ever has. Upward of 10 million people live here now. A fact as real as inflation. But, again, there's hope, hope fueled by ongoing expansion of the subway system to relieve the mammoth traffic congestion, the adoption of a revolutionary plan that calls for the division of the megalopolis into several self-contained mini-cities.

Though handling its new oil riches has confronted Mexico with a host of challenges as complex and dramatic as the Aztec relics utility workers and archaeologists frequently unearth in the heart of the capital, the country's matchless wealth of historic wonders and natural delights retain their powerful. magnet. Also unchanged is the innate dignity and graciousness with which most Mexicans have long impressed their foreign guests.

Paradise is not lost. It just costs a little more now.

Children's theater group invited to perform in Los Angeles area

The Charmed Circle Theatre Company, a local children's theater group, has been invited to perform for the Los Angeles Junior Programs by making appearances in six communities with the play, 'The Emperor's New Clothes.

Jim Gardner and Isabel Reade, directors and producers of The Charmed Circle, reported they were asked to audition and were enthusiastically invited to participate.

"They were excited about us," Reade said. "It is difficult to find a full scale children's theater group like ours.

The Los Angeles Junior Programs was initiated some 15 years ago when the wife of the new chancellor

Flashing her fan in disgust at her husband is the Empress (Eleanor Schulze) in the play, "The Emperor's New Clothes." The Emperor (Keith Mills) is disgusted with his new outfit, and his wife is becoming impatient. This happens in the play presented by The Charmed Circle Theater Company which will be seen by youngsters in the Los Angeles area through the Los Angeles Junior Programs, a group devoted to staging entertainment for children:

at UCLA was "appalled at the lack of children's theaters in Southern California.

Mrs. Raymond B. Allen, the chancellor's wife, set about gathering up 17 women to help form the Junior Programs plan. They scouted around to find plays and other entertainment for children and thus launched the Junior

The children's productions chosen at the auditions are then booked to appear in the various areas where Junior Programs have chapters.

'Frankly, we had never heard of Junior Programs," Gardner said. "Someone from the Citrus Chapter saw our show of 'The Emperor's New Clothes' and said we should audition. We were writing the script for the next production and didn't do anything about it ... but they came and dug us out and wouldn't take 'no' for an answer.'

"The Emperor's New Clothes" was second in auditioning in the La Mirada Civic Theater. There were many others to audition, Gardner explained, and not all were necessarily plays. There were puppets and other forms of

Not knowing if they had been accepted to the Junior Programs, the troupe came back to the West End as there was much work to be done on the forthcoming production. "Two months later we were notified by the Junior Programs that we were accepted ... and everyone wanted to open their season with us," Reade said. Gardner attributes the particular interest in "The Emperor's New Clothes" because it follows the Kabuki theater style of Japan. Gardner did extensive research on the art of Kabuki theater, makeup, costuming and scenery before casting the play.

He had adapted the Hans Christian Andersen's book, "The Emperor's New Clothes," into a play. He went to a Kabuki workshop led by Leonard Prono of Claremont Colleges who is a recognized expert on Kabuki theater. "Of course, we modified the movements to a great extent." Gardner said.

Kabuki actors, Gardner explained, attempt to communicate directly with their audiences ... talk to them, attempt to involve them emotionally in the play or with their character. This works well with The Charmed Circle Theatre Company as this is a prime objective with the plays directed by Gardner or Reade in the Upland Elementary School auditorium.

This communication with the audience will be difficult in some places on their Junior Programs tour, Gardner said, because many of the places do not lend to actoraudience communication.

The bookings for "The Emperor's New Clothes" are as follows: Oct. 17, Lakewood Sernior High School; Oct. 18, Culver City Hall School: Nov. 7, Citrus College auditorium; Nov. 14, Compton Community College: Nov. 29, Royce Hall, UCLA; Feb. 6, Lincoln Junior High School, Santa Monica; and Feb. 7, La Mirada Civic Theater.

The cast includes Keith Mills, Eleanor Schulze, Ernest Grindle, Richenda Averill, Gardner, Virginia Shannon, Pat Culbertson and Sandy Hanna. The kurombo (on-stage stage crew), are Karen Tieman, Holly Blummer, Gill Shannon, Justyne Averill, Ann Gatlin and Garrett Keller.

Reade is the director, and Gardner designed the costumes, makeup and wigs

Virginia Shannon, left, and Eleanor Schulze are rehearsing a scene from "The Emperor's New Clothes," the Charmed Circle Theatre Company's production, which will go on the Los Angeles Junior Programs circuit starting Oct. 17. The play was given in Upland this past season by the children's theater group, and Jim Gardner and Isabel Reade, producers, were asked to enter the Junior Programs auditions. They were selected and the play will be seen by youngsters in seven areas in Los Angeles County.

play to the seven engagements, the Junior Programs give the group funds for expenses and insurances. Next season, Gardner and Reade will stage "Aladdin" for the shows in Upland, but they now are making plans to adapt it for traveling. There is confidence the Los Angeles Junior Programs will again invite The Charmed Circle Theatre Company to audition ... and it will be invited

Bagpipes will launch area hunger walk

By REV. DAVID F. LEHMBERG

Pomona Valley Council of Churches Bagpipes have frequently been used to accompany soldiers as they march off to do battle. In fact, along with their use as an authentic folk-type instrument, the military application of bagpipes is one of their more common employments. I mean you don't find symphony orchestras performing Beethoven's "Concerto for Bagpipes and Orchestra" very often, probably because he never wrote one.

So it is good to know that, come Sunday, Oct. 18, at 1:20 p.m., bagpipes will launch the eighth annual "Walk For The Hungry" sponsored by the Pomona Valley Council of Churches. The pipes will be in the arms, hands and mouths of the McPherson Highlanders of Ontario, and they will be piping some 1,800 walkers off from the Upland Memorial Park, Foothill Boulevard, between Campus and Grove avenues in Upland. The sounds that once sent young men into armed combat will send young and old men and women to walk 10 miles for the purpose of raising some $60,000 to help alleviate hunger at home and abroad. A committee on the PVCC has been on the job getting ready for this year's effort since before Christmas last year: The Rev. Richard Kurrasch has chaired this committee during 1981, and has continued to spearhead the effort even though he moved from the Pomona Valley (as pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church in Pomona) to the San Gabriel Valley (Mayflower Congregational Church) during this year. Richard's commitment to the walk frequently brings him back to the Pomona Valley, in person or via telephone.

Why will some 1,800 people (and at least one dog) walk 10 miles to raise money for hunger projects? There may be as many answers as there are walkers, but a sample of reasons includes:

 from a high school boy who has lived in countries where hunger is prevalent, "We just have got to do something - not just talk."

- from a housewife and public school teacher, "Twothirds of the world's population will go to bed hungry tonight. The least I can do is raise a few dollars by

- from a pastor, "It's a Christian thing to do." $60,000 won't solve the world's hunger problems, but it will do a lot more than we probably expect. A Walk For The Hungry will serve both to educate us about the causes and cures of hunger in a world of plenty and to help us do something practical to feed some hungry folks for a while, An interesting fact discovered in preparation for the walks is that the cost of one B-1 bomber could restore all the cuts made in the school lunch program.

In a world where (according to CROP, the hunger program of Church World Service) 34,000 children die each day, most of them from starvation and malnutrition, and where 900,000,000 people live on less than $200 a year; each man, woman and child in the United States will spend $4 per day for the next five years on our own military budget. If only 10 percent of the world's military budgets were invested over the next 10 years, the income produced could solve most of the problems of hunger, poverty and health in the world. ### Hispanic group marks second year

The Hispanic American Personnel Management Association will celebrate its second anniversary by holding a retreat Oct. 10 in Rialto for its board of directors.

The board will spend the day considering and objectives to de educational proams and scholarships promising high ool students who into pursue a college two years ago when a group of valley professionals coordinated their efforts in offering assistance and expertise in such areas as personnel management, industrial relations, equal employment opportunities and career development.

Board officers are Augustine Tapia, president; Jovona Carle, secretary; Joe Baca, past president

The association began and parliamentarian; and Terry Vega, public relations and employment activities.

> The group serves Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside counties.

Key parts of the association's program include offering referrals and job placement assistance; providing inforabout mation scholarships and other opportunities in higher education, and leadership in personnel, government-sponsored programs and education for its membership and the community at-large.

The association last August held its annual banquet to honor eight June graduates from valley high schools. All of the graduating seniors received scholarships to help meet the cost of higher education.

Chino farmers have option to bail out of state contract

Staff Writer

Land owners in the sprawling ricultural preserve of the Chino ea will soon be given a choice to cide whether they want to leave e protection of the state Williamson Act which has given them a tax break for the past 16 years.

A bill by Assemblyman Richard Rebinson, a Santa Ana Democrat, vas signed into law Thursday by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., giving them a one-time-only oppor-tunity to cancel the contracts which helped keep them in the preserve since 1965.

ponents of the bill contend e Williamson Act, since the passage of Proposition 13, has outlived its usefulness for many of he local dairymen.

The new law, taking effect Jan. provides that those who have ved tax breaks under the Caliornia Land Conservation Act for taying in the ag preserve, will be ble to cancel their contracts with minor penalty, between March 1

Some county officials predicted that the opportunity will have a potent impact on the 16,450-acre reserve that lies generally south Riverside Drive and east of elid Avenue. But elected offials played down that possibility.

this the county that determines the zoning, regardless of the Williamson Act," county Su-pervisor Robert Townsend de-"Until and unless the land oned for other purposes, the rve stays intact.'

Marvin Krieger, a senior county lanner who is completing a $50,-00 county survey of the dairy adustry, said that of the 16,500 cres of land in the preserve 9,824 cres are under the protection of ne Williamson Act.

That law assesses the land as ricultural, rather than commercial and residential, a significant tax break for those who agree to keep the contract for 10 years. Those who break the contract have to make up the difference in Robinson's law now would allow the dairymen to drop out of the contract for a much more modest penalty during the 90-day period.

State. Sen. Rubin Ayala suggested that for some dairymen the Williamson Act may have outlived its usefulness, since under Proposition 13 their property can only be taxed for 1 percent of its market value, a considerable tax reduction from the earlier assess-

But he also pointed out that as far as the preserve is concerned the new law would have little immediate effect, not only be-cause the county still had the final say in zoning, but also because of the economics.

"People will continue to use their land for dairies as long as it's profitable. When they find something better, they'll change. Right now, for the most part, dairying is

He said the dairymen will have to do some hard arithmetic to find which way to go.

Supervisor Townsend pointed out that for the dairymen one of the adverse effects of the changeover in assessments would be that they would have to pay higher real estate taxes.

He admonished those who wanted to drop their state contracts strictly so they could sell their land to developers more easily had no assurance that the supervisors would change the land use.

Robinson's bill apparently was the aftermath of a court decision which tightened the conditions un-

But after the state Supreme Court ruled that the farmers could not get out of the Williamson contracts unless the circumstances were "extraordinary" the Santa Ana legislator and his supporters decided to give the farmers a temporary "window" which allowed them to get out if they wanted to.

Under the new law, landowners will be able to get out of the agreement during the 90-day peri-od if they pay a penalty equal to one-eighth of the land's new market value.

Townsend said more than 60 percent of the valley's 370 dairies are covered by the Williamson Act.

Food coloring for a suntan?

Copley News Service

The well-tanned stewardess was going through her promotional spiel in the meeting room at the Pacifica Hotel in nearby Culver City when she reminded her

"Remember. We're in the business of selling food coloring. What you do with the tablets is your business. This prompted a burst of laughter from a woman in the front row who said: "But the side effects are a tan. I love

In California humanity's latest infatuation with vanity, promoters are offering food-coloring tablets that produce a tan when taken in regular quantities.

Since the U.S. Food and Drug Administration doesn't approve of the canthaxanthin or beta-carotene tablets for human consumption, they are marketed as food coloring, thereby sidestepping federal control.

And promoters are selling the tablets with direct marketing techniques based on the pyramid principle where the more people you get to sell the product, the more money an individual distributor makes.

The stewardess, who sells the pills on the side, says she has had no problems from them during the three months she has been taking them.

"I don't even take aspirin," she said, to emphasize her concern about health habits. But the FDA has concerns.

'We are telling consumers not to use these products until the manufacturers can demonstrate they are safe, which they haven't done," said Jim Greene, an FDA spokesman in Washington, D.C.

Greene said he wasn't aware of any particular health problems related to the tablets. But, he said, "Our problem is we don't know the long-range effects they have. There is nothing to prove they aren't harmful.' FDA officials in Los Angeles say they are attempting to control the use of the tablets by detaining them — and sending them back — when they are sent into this coun-The food-coloring tablets have been made and sold in France and Canada for several years. Since May when the FDA was made aware of their increasing use in this country, U.S. Customs and FDA officials have detained 17 small shipments in Los Angeles found during routine international mail checks. Marvin Taunton, the FDA director of compliance in Los Angeles, says it is illegal to make the tablets in this country for human consumption. However, Dean Marlow, whose Behavioral Modification Systems Inc. of Encino is involved in the promotion sessions at the Pacifica, says the tablets he distributes are made in nearby Northridge.

Marlow wouldn't say exactly where the factory is. When first contacted, Marlow said the FDA has "voluminous reports" on food-coloring tablets. But he could not produce a single document relating to the tablets' safety. Marlow says the French Ministry of Health and Canadian officials have approved the tablets for human use. He describes his operation as "like DMSO. We can advertise, but we can't make claims." (DMSO is a solvent used by some people with arthritis.)

Marlow's product is sold under the name Golden Tan.

A new name he also is calling the tablets is Sante Beaute, which means health and beauty in French. In France and Canada, the food-coloring tablets are marketed under the names Dermabronze, Dermobronze, Orobronze and Sun Tan capsules Marlow says the product works by coloring the layer of fat under a person's skin, which causes the translucent skin to appear tanned.

"You need very little sun to get tan with these pills," Marlow said. "The big market is the 9-to-5 worker. They can't go out and nurse a tan."

Marlow says taking two pills in the morning and two in the evening will give a person a rich tan with only a half-

Ex-grand jury members fear reports ignored

By DON GREEN

Staff Writer What happens to grand jury reports after they are issued? Some former members of the San Bernardino County Grand Jury believé that too often the reports do little more than gather dust as their recommendations are ignored.

They are trying to do something about it. Al Hancock — a member of the 1962 and 1978-79 grand juries (the term was changed from calendar to fiscal year) - and other past members are making an ongoing effort to revitalize the San Bernardino County Grand Jury Association.

Hancock said the association was revived about two years ago, although the group is still struggling to play a more active role. He said the association has 55 to 60 dues-paying members. The predecessor to this association was the Past Grand Jurors Association. Hancock said that group was organized around 1963, In the beginning, past grand jurors turned out in force for the association, but the group dissolved before the end of the decade, Hancock said.

The new association meets every other month, usually in the San Bernardino County Museum in Redlands. Hancock said part of the association's purpose is to educate the public on what a grand jury does. The association's other role is to review the reports the grand jury issues and follow up on what action is taken by the county Board of Supervisors on the reports'

Of course, we have no legal muscle of any kind," Hancock pointed

Hancock said the association's meetings are open to the public, adding the group so far has suffered from a lack of publicity.

The association has set up a committee — headed by Ray Rucker, former police chief of San Bernardino and a member of the 1980-81 grand jury - to tackle one of the county's most enduring controversial issues, salaries for elected

Salaries for the five supervisors and seven other elected officials have been frozen at their levels on Dec. 1, 1977, since a charter amendment was approved by voters in November 1978. Measures last year to give the elected officials a rais. and free increases in fringe benefits from voter approval were overwhelmingly defeated.

Hancock said the association has no specific proposal yet, but hopes to work with any groups interested in increasing the salaries.

'We feel they are way out of line with what other officials (the elected officials' counterparts in other Southland counties) are making, although we are the first to criticize waste in government and high salaries," Hancock said.

The association's focus on past grand jury recommendations, following through to see the county does not ignore the suggestions, is an important objective for the group, Hancock said.

We're not always right, but it's up to the county departments to prove us wrong," he said.

Hancock noted that some recommendations have been made repeatedly by grand juries over the years. A case in point is the proposed merger of the marshal's office into the Sheriff's Department, a move the 1980-81 grand jury said studies show could save $1 million

When the board considered its official response to the grand jury report, grand jurors twice turned out in force at the board room in San Bernardino and would have been there a third time if not for a misunderstanding on when the board was going to act.

Eighty percent of the wine consumed in the United States is now produced in California, and a share of that comes from grapes grown in the West End where the annual harvest is now under way in vineyards lining the freeways and tucked into the foothills.

But despite the booming statewide wine industry, total acreage in San Bernardino County devoted to grape growing is on a steep decline, and the days of what have mostly been family owned-and-operated vineyards appear to be numbered.

and-operated vineyards appear to be numbered.

As housing along with commercial and industrial development in the growing West End have gobbled up vineyard after vineyard, the total number of acres planted with vines has been cut in half during the past 20 years, while the annual grape harvest has declined by more than 50,000

According to figures provided by John Kwock, supervising biologist with the county agriculture commissioner's office, in 1960 there were 21,179 acres in San Bernardino County planted in vineyards and they yielded 80,936 tons of wine grapes.

By 1970 the number of acres devoted to grape growing had dropped to 13,932 acres, and a very poor yield that year brought just 13,475 tons of grapes.

grapes.

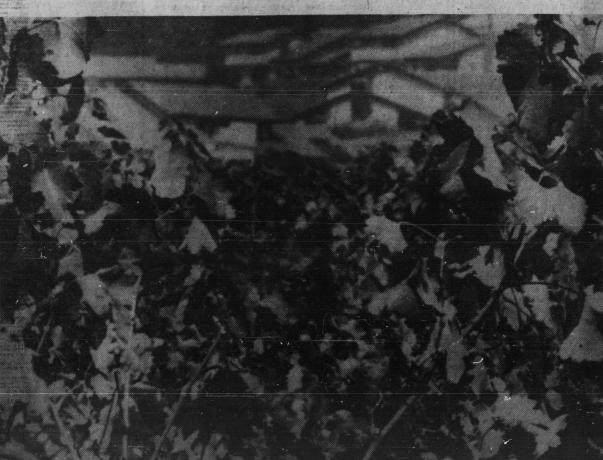

Today, only 10,000 acres of vineyards remain, mostly located in the West End of the county, and in 1980 they yielded 30,200 tons of grapes during the harvest.

Unusually hot summer weather forced this year's harvest to begin approximately a week earlier than normal, starting the last week of August. Picking and crushing is expected to continue until about mid-October.

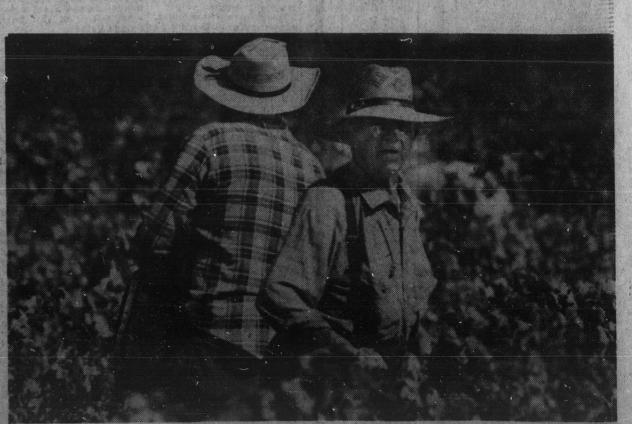

A truckload of grapes is dumped into a crusher at Brookside Winery.

A West End vineyard lies in the path of another encroaching housing development.

Domenic Galleano, 93, of Alta Loma has supervised harvests in local vineyards since 1918.
